

Darhholm Bank Report

This was the first of what we all hope are MANY games from Tyler Davis. The story was great and the game was fabulous! The PCs had to find out how the person who contacted them for help managed to disappear, and to where they disappeared.

It turns out that their contact has vanished into a pocket dimension ruled by an ancient vampire: Vlad. The PCs brave encounters with undead, witches, a mad scientist, a werewolf, and other creatures! At the end, the players meet Vlad himself and attempt to retrieve the artifact that is holding the barrier between the pocket dimension and our Plane of Reality.

The script was excellent, and the props were amazing!
